The Place to Learn

As you would expect of the region that gave the world Shakespeare and the dictionary, the West Midlands Region has some of the finest educational establishments in the country.

Excellent universities, higher education establishments and further Education colleges offer real variety. High honours are not just bestowed on students. Many regional establishments have also received high praise and awards. For example, MBA courses in Aston and Warwick are ranked as some of the world's finest. In fact IBM rate Aston as Europe's best business school for quality of recruits.

The West Midlands is a Region responding to the needs of business, ensuring skills are aligned to the needs of employees, employers and the economy. From the Construction Centre of Excellence in Birmingham, which aims to train students in the construction trade to the Ludlow Vocational Training Centre in Shropshire. Opportunities are endless. As is the enthusiasm for learning.

This is a region rich with talented individuals. A region with a bright future.
